

August 26, 2010

Westwind Prep pushing ahead quickly

Anthony Ray

ArizonaPreps.com Senior Writer

No program in the state of Arizona has pushed the state's level of basketball ahead more or faster than Westwind Prep Academy.

2012 star wing Demarquise Johnson returns to lead Westwind Prep Academy this season.

Since Director of Basketball Operations Gary Trousdale took over the helm at the school just three years ago, he has done wonders in creating an atmosphere at the school that has brought a lot of respect to the state of Arizona. Trousdale, who coaches the high school basketball team, is ready for another blockbuster season in 2010-2011.

Last season, Westwind Prep Academy, which plays in the 2A Conference, rolled through the state - finishing with a very impressive 30-3 overall record and losing in the AIA State Championship game to Scottsdale Christian HS, 52-47

WPA should blow past the competition this season in Arizona, as super-talented 6-foot-6 junior forward Demarquise Johnson returns to lead the way for the Warriors alongside 6-foot-6 senior wing Paris Oliver. 6-foot-9, 215-pound senior post Marcus Fuggins also transferred in from Citrus Hill HS (CA) to give the program a serious low post presence. 6-foot senior guard Stephen Topercer also returns to the state of Arizona after having a successful season at New Hampton Prep (MA) last season, while there are many other new faces in the program from abroad, including several players from outside the United States.